So Says This Richmond Capitalist in Commenting on the Booklovers' Contest.

A few days ago the Contest Editor in charge of The Times-Dispatch $1,200 Booklovers' Contest Game, met a well-known man of this city, reputed to be worth a million or more, and the millionaire complimented this newspaper on the contest, and particularly because of the cash awards offered.

He said, "what that first award, $300 in cash, may mean to some man or woman. I tell you that it is cash which enables a person to seize an opportunity. The average person on a salary finds it mighty hard to save years of patient, plodding, hard effort, and the foregoing of all pleasures to get together such a sum.

"I know that it took me four years" ort, and the foregoing of all pleasures to get together such a sum.

"I know that it took me four years to save $300 cash—the nest egg of what I am now fortunate enough to possess. I always think of that $300 as being the foundation of what now enables me to go to Europe when I please, maintain three autos, and otherwise enjoy myself. That $300 in cash I put into a little land deal—it was part payment on two lots. I sold the lots at a good profit, The money went back into land, and finally I had a real nest egg. So I invested in a business, and put the balance in more land. From then on it increased so fast that you would doubt my word if I told you just how rapidly it came piling in. Of course, not every land deal is a success by any means. It happened in my case that I had been studying and observing the course of growth here, and got in on the tide. The city is now taking another move that some one should get in on. I am in on it, as usual.

"Money makes money fast and Wa in on it, as usual.

"Money makes money fast, and it's this first thousand that generally is like pulling teeth to accumulate. And to seize an opportunity, remember, you must have cash. Cash simply throws a noose around the neck of opportunity as it goes scurrying by. If you don't have cash you can't stop opportunity, that's all"

To a man with money and brains, it is very easy to embark in political life, and to rise rapidly in England. By liberal contributions to the campaign fund of one or another of the political parties, or to some popular charities, it would not be difficult for Chandler to obtain a baronetcy.

There are a number of noble famlies in Europe of similar origin. Thus, Louis Marchand, whose mother was one of the nursery maids of the King of Rome, her official title being "rocker of the cradle" to the son and heir of the great Napoleon—the "Aiglon" of Sardou—was set down in the will of the great Emperor for a legacy of $120,000, for his faithful services as valet from 1811 until the death of his imperial master in captivity at St. Helena nine years later. When King Louis Philippe's sailor son, Admiral the Prince de Joinville, was sent out to St. Helena to bring back to France the remains of the Emperor, for entombment at the Inva-lides, Marchand was invited to take part in the expedition, in order to es-tablish the recognition of the body on its disinterment. Crabbet Park's principal title to fame is its stud farm of Arabian horses of the jurest breed. It enjoys an altogether international celebrity, and the sales of Arab stock which take place there every three or four years are invariably attended by horse lovers from all parts of Europe. Ever since Wilfrid Blunt retired from the diplomatic service, nearly thirty years ago, he has devoted himself to the study of Oriental life, the taste for which is shared by his wife, a sister of the late Earl of Lovelace.

Speaking Turkish, and the various Arab dialects like a native, the Blunts have traveled all over Arabia, arrayed in native costume, living on native food, and establishing the closest friendships with the various sheikhs an altogether international celebrity, friendships with the various sheikhs and emirs. Their hold on the good will of the latter was strengthened by throughout the Moslem world by rea-son of the championship by Wilfrid Blunt of every Moslem cause against the white races and the Christians. He has repeatedly defended, in the Nineteenth Century and other English reviews, as well as in the London Times, the cause of the Sultan, of the Moslems in India, of the present Khedive, of his grandfather, old ismail, and of the insurgent chief, Arabi Pasha. In fact, his enthusiasm in connection with these causes compelled Lord Cromer, when British plenipotentiary at Cairo on two occasions to have him expelled from Egypt, on account of the trouble that he was stirring up against the English authorities among the native dignitaries and clergy.

Being regarded throughout Arabia as the most powerful and devoted friend of the Arab, Turkish and Egyptian races, Wilfrid Blunt has been able to obtain from the various chiefs and emirs mares and stallions of the most famous and the twarts been able to obtain from the various chiefs and emirs mares and stallions of the most famous and the traces and the traces and the traces and the Lord of the most famous and the traces and the curious Christians presents of its year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making.
